Copyright: AHS materials may be subject to copyright. The Society does not make any representations or warranties regarding the copyright status of any items in its collections. That granting of permission to publish, broadcast or exhibit material does not absolve the publisher from securing permission from the copyright owners and payment of such additional fees as the copyright owners may require if the Society does not own the copyright and the material is not in the public domain. The copyright law of the United States (title 17, U.S.C.) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, archives and libraries are authorized to furnish a photocopy or reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

The researcher assumes all responsibility for identifying and satisfying any claimants of copyrights and for observing applicable laws regarding intellectual property. The recipient agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Arizona Historical Society, its officers, employees and agents from and against all suits, claims, actions and expenses arising out of the use of reproductions provided by the Library and Archives Department.
