

ARIZONA HISTORICAL SOCIETY BOARD MEMBER

STEPHEN S. CHAPMAN

At-Large Member, Appointed 2021

Stephen Chapman currently works as an Archaeological Field Technician and Monitor in the Phoenix area, recovering cultural artifacts through excavation. As a sixth-generation Arizonan, Stephen's innate love of Arizona comes through a complicated ancestry of old-school Mormon settlers, vagrants, law enforcement and renegades. His passion for Arizona history extends into his career as he works daily to preserve physical memories of the past.

Stephen spent most of his childhood in Mesa, where he was heavily involved in the Boy Scouts; eventually earning his Eagle Scout Award. Spending countless days and nights outdoors in his formative years instilled a deep love for Arizona, from the beautiful landscapes to its rich history.

Stephen is a recent graduate of Arizona State University, earning bachelor's degrees in both History and Anthropology. As he builds his career, he plans on returning for graduate school in order to enhance his ability to act as a force for good in his community.

Stephen loves serving others, and enjoys playing music, chess, and being outside. He goes hiking and camping as often as he can, and loves exploring. He rides his motorcycle everyday, and enjoys rollerblading and cycling; essentially any form of transportation that allows him to breathe fresh air and feel the desert sun on his face.
