Hayes, Karen

Sierra Madre Revisited collection, 1988

DESCRIPTION

Typescript narrative and photographs of a 1988 expedition by thirty-six Apaches and 6 historians and guides to follow the route taken by Loco's band of Chiricahua Apaches 106 years before and to visit places in Mexico important to the history of their ancestors. The narrative, written by Alden Hayes, switches between the historical and contemporary journeys was published in the Journal of Arizona History 32(2). The photographs, taken by Karen Hayes, show the contemporary trip, camping and the Mountain Spirit Dance.

1 box, .25 linear ft.

HISTORICAL NOTE

Alarmed by the Battle of Cibecue in 1881, many Chiricahua Apaches left the reservation and fled into Mexico. Most returned to San Carlos by 1883, but others followed Geronimo and didn't return until Geronimo's surrender to Gen. George Crook at Cañon de los Embudos in the Sierra Madres of Mexico.
